

Home Kitchen

Home Kitchen is a not-for-profit restaurant and social impact programme. They're serving the finest quality food while transforming the perception of homelessness and making a positive impact on the UK hospitality sector.

CHALLENGE

Research by Crisis shows 42% of all UK employers would terminate an existing employee's contract if they became homeless. Home Kitchen believes that offering catering and hospitality roles to people who experience homelessness can do good even for the sector.

SOLUTION

They established the first fine dining restaurant run by people who have experienced homelessness, offering full-time contracts paid at the London Living Wage, with travel expenses, professional catering training and qualifications also covered.

REVENUE

The social enterprise generates revenue primarily by offering a fine dining experience with both à la carte and tasting menu options.

IMPACT

By offering stable jobs and training in hospitality, Home Kitchen empowers individuals to break free from the cycle of homelessness, equipping them with the skills and confidence they need to build sustainable careers.
